

We designed and used an adaptive residual U-Net (AdaResU-Net) approach for 3D image segmentation. The AdaResU-Net is a multi-objective fully convolutional neural network (FCN) that uses an evolutionary algorithm to automatically select the optimal set of hyperparameters for a specific medical image dataset. The evolutionary algorithm provides an architecture that minimizes both the validation Dice loss and the number of trainable parameters.