CT Lung Nodule CAD System

Our lung nodule CAD System is base on deep convolutional neural network. The network is trained on two steps, first use segmentation method to find all nodule candidates, second we use residual network to reduce the false positive nodules.

Due to the intellectual property associated with our system, additional details cannot be released at the point.